He Visited Some Patients

(Chattanooga, Tenn., Daily News.)

A representative of the News has just returned from a very successful visit to Chattanooga.

Concerning the reports that the long sought cure for Bright's disease has been discovered, he took special pains to find out the truth of the matter, and came back fully convinced.

One lady, the wife of a San Francisco editor, not only told of her husband's remarkable recovery after physicians had given him up, but she recited off as of no moment the names of several they told of who had recovered. One case was particularly interesting. It was a case of Bright's disease in which the young man was so impressed that nothing could be done that he had to be tricked into taking the new specific. Each time a dose was administered a tablespoonful of his old medicine was secretly disposed of, thus allaying suspicions. To complicate matters the young man recovered the physician became elated, thinking he had discovered a cure for Bright's disease. It was not until the patient was so well along toward recovery that there was no uncertainty about it that the whole plot was disclosed. One of San Francisco's pioneer druggists also confirmed his own recovery and made the astonishing statement that he had given it to between 40 and 50 and only knew of a few failures.—Chattanooga Daily News.

We sent for this treatment for patients here and will give full information. Riebert & Wells, Barre, Vt.

Mildred Holland in "A Paradise of Lies."

A royal treat is in store for our theatre-goers who visit the opera house on next Monday night when Mildred Holland will give the first production in this city of her emotional drama, "A Paradise of Lies," by Matthew Barry. Holding undisputed sway as one of the foremost actresses of the age who brings to her work a charming dignity and magnetism which has won her popularity wherever the English language is spoken on the Western continent, it is particularly gratifying that Miss Holland, this year has one of the most satisfactory successes of her entire career.

In "A Paradise of Lies," a play in a prologue and three acts, Miss Holland runs the gamut of every human emotion that a woman's soul may know. Her Lolita is the story of the life which begins as a cast-away child on the banks of a lily pond, and ends amid the brilliancy of an Italian court. The period is the end of the romantic eighteenth century.

The Spinal Cord.

A young teacher whose efforts to inculcate elementary and anatomy had been unusually discouraging, at last asked in despair:

"Well, I wonder if any boy here can tell me what the spinal cord really is?" She was met by a row of blank and irresponsible faces, till finally one small voice piped up in great excitement:

"The spinal cord is what runs through you. Your head sits on one end and you sit on the other."—Rochester Herald.

AFTER N. Y. CITY BONDS

The Amazing Record of "Abe" White and Partner, Sam Byerley, Who Secured Slice of Government Bonds With Postage Stamp.

New York, Sept. 13.—Today the whole financial world is amazed at the latest coup of Abraham White, whose eccentric operations have given him the sobriquet of the "rock buyer" and the "original postage stamp bond bidder," and his partner, Sam Byerley, another postage stamp bidder, to whom have been awarded $15,000,000 of the New York city bonds, with 880 bidders, and not a successful one from a syndicate managed by J. Pierpont Morgan.

To the astonishment of the city officials and Wall Street bankers, who had offered him much lower than his, Mr. White, as president of the Abraham White Bond company, offered to take the entire issue of 4 1/2 per cent. bonds. He expresses regret that he was not awarded them all.

"As a matter of fact, I am surprised that I didn't get more," said he. "These bonds will advance within a very short time to 100, feel confident of that. This talk that New York city's bonds aren't going up is all bosh."

"Is your concern entirely solvent?" he was asked.

"It is absolutely solvent," was the emphatic reply. "It always has been. I kept 12 cows and team. Good house, comfortable barns. Her house suitable for 100 hens. An ideal home. Price low. Inquire at once at the D. A. Perry Real Estate agency."

Seated in the drawing room of the magnificent mansion at Long Branch, which he purchased two years ago from John A. McCall, formerly president of the New York Life Insurance company, he laughed at the interest that had been aroused by his entry into city bond sales and hinted that he might be from in the future when bonds are put up for disposition. He has already become a formidable rival to the money kings of Wall Street, although he has been in the money game but a few years. His partner, Byerley, has also become a rich man by his manipulations and shrewdness.

Mr. White was born in Texas 45 years ago, and began a fight with the world when he was 12 years old. Always a speculator, he had considerable money by the time most boys leave school. Coming to New York, he soon became known as the "rock buyer," on account of his practice of buying city lots bearing big outcroppings of rock. He had noticed such lots could be bought for about $20,000 in the localities he fancied, while lots flush with the building level brought twice that much. He reasoned that he could save interest on $20,000 and that his rock-doomed lots in time would be worth about as much as the others. Time proved him right, and his "rock buying" in West End avenue and Riverside drive netted him handsome profits.

But it was when he bid on $8,000,000 of government bonds 11 years ago that Mr. White gained his greatest prominence. It cost him just 44 cents in stamps to send his bid to Secretary Carlisle, and he was allotted bonds in the sum of $1,300,000. As soon as he received notification of the allotment he went to Russell Sage, explained what he had done, and asked for assistance to "make good." It is said the originality and boldness of the bid appealed to the ordinarily conservative financier. At any rate, Mr. White got the aid he asked. The deal netted him $100,000, his only risk having been 44 cents. In time he had acquired his other nicknames, "the original postage stamp bond bidder."

Later he became associated with "Sam" Byerley, an express clerk, another postage stamp bidder, who had been allotted $5,800,000 of Panama bonds. Mr. White made Mr. Byerley vice president of the Abraham White Bond company.

In the sharp rise in Union and Southern Pacific last year, Mr. White is said to have made $500,000 partly by having a "tip" and partly by Mr. Harriman causing to be declared unexpectedly large dividends on securities that had the day before been considered for no reason. It was then that Mr. White bought the McCall place and announced that on the death of himself and his wife, there being no children, the property would go to charity.

During the last year, Mr. White has been conspicuous in financial operations, having done with various other companies. He was president of the DeForest company and organized the United States Wireless Telegraph company, with a capital of $20,000,000, to consolidate the DeForest and the Marconi concerns. Litigation growing out of these deals still is pending.

Other bond deals out of which Mr. White made money were the old Brooklyn issued and a big issue of Boston bonds.

Great was the wonder a year ago when it was learned that Sam Byerley, a clerk in the American Express company office in New York, had outwitted and outfigured the financial sharks of the country in bidding successfully for $5,800,000 worth of Panama canal bonds by the investment of a two-cent stamp. His profit was approximately $20,000.

His bid was made possible by the fact that the then secretary of the treasury, Leslie M. Shaw, required no cash deposit with the bid. He did, however, demand a premium, requiring all bidders to deposit in cash, at either the treasury department or any of the sub-treasuries, an amount obtained by multiplying the par value of bonds awarded to a successful bidder by the amount bid above par. In Byerley's case this sum amounted to $200,000. The bids were announced on July 21, but the premium was not required until Aug. 1.

Byerley, when he saw the announcement in the newspapers, immediately called up Secretary Shaw on the long distance telephone and asked him if the bonds would be awarded to him provided

A STRONG SAVINGS INSTITUTION

The strength of a Savings Bank depends not alone on the size of its deposits nor the number of its depositors. It depends rather upon the kind of securities in which the management invest their funds and the care with which these securities are looked after. The Danby Mirror evidently thinks these conditions are well met in the Hyde Park Savings Bank. It says:

"Beginning July 1st, the Lamolite County Savings Bank and Trust Co. of Hyde Park, Vt., will pay four per cent. interest on deposits remaining in its care for a year or more. This is a particularly strong savings institution, and during its existence has invested the money of its depositors wholly in the state and has never lost a dollar. Hon. Carroll S. Page, one of the most able business men in Vermont, and the state's honored ex-Governor, is president of the bank—the kind of a president who knows at all times how the affairs of the bank are being conducted, and is ever active in promoting its interests and protecting its depositors against possible loss."

he had the premium ready on that date, and Secretary Shaw assured him that they would. Byerley then set out to sell the bonds, and he disposed of them, or rather the right to buy them, through J. S. Bach & Co., to Flak & Robinson. This firm had been a successful bidder for about one-half of the entire issue. His profits on the deal were said to be a little more than $20,000.

What The Cardinal Said.

A correspondent writes: An allusion in your last week's issue to the "Purple Lotus Mother" and other leaders of the "Inner Circle" reminds me of a story of the spiritualist world. An ardent spiritualist begged a friend to go with him to visit a popular medium of the day. They drove some miles till they reached a suburban district, where they were received by a lady in a black silk dress and goggles at her own front door. Saying, "Mr. Oak will be here in a minute, gentlemen," she showed them to the front parlor—the kind of room that the Germans so well describe as die Kalle Pracht; a room set aside for special occasions, cold and uninvited. Brief graces in vases, croquet lampnades, a Niagara shower of cut and colored paper filling the fireless grate—these were the chief "motives" of the place. After a time the lady reappeared and the visitors were shown into a darkened room. They sat around a table. A blue luminous cross appeared floating above it. "Ah, Cardinal Newman," said the voice of their guide, "it isn't many evenings but we don't see some sign of 'im." And then a voice was heard: "Benedictine, my children."

Retaliation.

A guest at one of the summer resorts in West Virginia tells of a wedding ceremony he witnessed in the town near by.

The minister was young and easily embarrassed. It was the first wedding he had ever undertaken. The prospective bride and bridegroom were both younger and still more easily embarrassed than he.

When the minister had finished the service and muttered a few kindly but halting words to the young couple he had just united, the bride looked at him, blushing but confident.

"Thank yer," she said, clearly. "It's shore kind o' yer to congratulate us, an' as long as you haven't ever been married yet, maybe we'll have a chance some day to retaliate."—Harper's Weekly.

RUDYARD KIPLING.

Rudyard Kipling, it is said, will get the Nobel literary prize—press dispatch. "What are the authors sneering for?" said Bookworm on Parade. "To call him down, to call him down," the Nature Faker said; "What makes Hall Caine so blooming mad?" said Bookworm on Parade; "He's frettin' 'cause he lost the prize," the Nature Faker said; "For they're giving it to Kipling, and the crowd is shrieking 'Nix! Nix! And Gorky and his fellow Slavs don't like the deal a bit; And Bernard Shaw has sneaked away to throw a little fit. While they're decoratin' Rudyard in the mornin'!"

"What makes Dick Davis turn so pale?" said Bookworm on Parade; "A jealous twinge, a jealous twinge," the Nature Faker said; "And what makes Dr. Tvaun so glum?" said Bookworm on Parade; "It ain't no joke to him, I guess," the Nature Faker said;

"For the ink pots are a hissing, and the pens are scratching hard, And the type-writers are a-thumpin' without fear or regard, And there'll be bricks thrown, I'm thinkin', from each author man's bank yard, When they're decoratin' Rudyard in the mornin'!"

—Denver Republican.

NAUTICAL VERBACULAR.

Said the boarding-house keeper, "Ah, me! I should love to sail over the sea, But I never can go on the ocean, and so I must always a land lady be."

"Though this boarding-house may be my pride, It is not like a ship on the tide, Yet I notice today there is one stow-away, Right here, on the star-boarder side."
